Latin: A Course for Beginners

This guide will help you decide whether Latin: A Course for Beginners is right for you. It gives you all the essential information you need about the course and studying with NEC. You can also speak to our friendly team (details at the end of this guide) who can advise you.

About this course

Learning Latin and being able to read literature in the original can be a rewarding and enriching experience.

This course provides a thorough introduction to Latin using a varied selection of extracts and activities. So whether you want to read historical or legal documents, decipher memorials or the Latin mass, or simply want to learn something new, it will enable you to start reading Latin texts from day one, even if you have no previous knowledge of Latin.

Offering a variety of extracts and a range of activities to help you gain a good understanding of the Latin language, the course provides a strong foundation from which to build valuable language skills. Learning Latin is not easy, and the course requires effort, but by the end you'll have an excellent knowledge of basic Latin and be able to tackle Latin texts in their original form.

What's included with the course?

When you enrol you will receive the following:

- access to learn@nec website
- online access to course materials which you can download and print or study on screen
- tuition from your personal tutor for up to 18 months
- a free e-book version of any essential textbook(s) where possible
- supporting materials including a Time Planner to help you plan your study timetable and information which explains how to enter for exams
- NEC's guide to study skills: How to Succeed as an Independent Learner plus guidance on spelling, punctuation and grammar
- details of how to contact your personal tutor and an NEC course coordinator.

What's not included?

- exam fees where exam(s) or assessed coursework are necessary
- additional textbooks for some courses.

Your goals and this course

Before deciding to enrol on this course, think about what you want to achieve. For example, you may want to:

- develop your skills in the subject and learn more about it for your own satisfaction and interest
- gain a qualification in order to improve job prospects or go onto further study such as A levels, a vocational qualification or a degree programme.

It's important to check that this course will help you to achieve your goals. One way is to research a college where you'd like to study in future or maybe the Open University to find out if this course is part of the entry requirements.

If you're still unsure whether this course is right for you, you can contact the NEC course advice team (details at the end of this guide).

Learning with NEC

As a student with NEC you're in charge: you can enrol at any time and you choose where and when to study and set your own deadlines. This means that you can fit the time you spend studying around work and family commitments. Such independence can be attractive, but it can also be demanding. This is why NEC's courses support and guide you every step of the way.

NEC has been delivering home study or distance learning courses for over 50 years and, with an average of over 7000 students each year, is a leader in providing courses for GCSE, A level and vocational courses. Drawing on our experience and on research findings into the way adults learn, we develop enjoyable courses that include:

- carefully designed course materials
- individual support from an expert tutor
- access to our virtual learning environment, learn@nec
- thorough induction to the course systems.

learn@nec

The learn@nec website is our virtual learning environment and the gateway to your course and the NEC community. Its flexible design means you can study whenever you want and wherever you want. learn@nec is where you'll be able to discuss your course with your peers, your tutor and the team at NEC. It's also where you'll access your course materials.

You can also save and print our materials at home if you want to, so you can work offline.

Course materials

All of our course materials are written and selected by subject matter experts, including experienced teachers, examiners and authors. The content is closely matched to the specification, so you can be confident that the course covers what you need to learn to prepare for the qualification.

The course materials are designed to provide a clear guide to your work through the course. The text is easy to follow, with examples, illustrations, activities, additional reading where appropriate, revision points and helpful suggestions that bring each subject to life. It is organised into topics and sections to give a clear path through the course. And it is structured to build your knowledge, skills and understanding step by step.

Assignments help you to check your learning. You submit these to your tutor for marking, feedback and advice.

In addition to the written course materials you will be directed to other resources such as useful videos, interactive quizzes and a free e-book of the essential course textbook, where applicable.

'I cannot stress too highly my admiration for this course. The texts and grammar were covered in a very natural way.'

NEC Latin student

'I have been interested in counselling for a long time and chose the course as a way of learning more about it in a structured way. I found it gave me the insight into the subject I was looking for. Studying with NEC has built up my confidence and added to my knowledge. Longer term, I hope to go on and study for a degree.'

Astero, NEC counselling student

'I had a look at attending a local college, but this was the best option for me because of its flexibility. If you know you can motivate yourself, and you don't have problems working on your own, I would absolutely recommend it. It allows me to choose when I do my assignments, so whilst my children might be busy doing something else I can do some study; or, if my husband's working late and they're in bed, I can sit down and attack a few questions. I didn't want it to encroach on family life, so I've been doing it in the odd hours I get to myself, which are not many when you've got three children!'

Sarah Yewman

'I feel very grateful for the chance to start this course as I believe it's going to progress me far in life.'

Tutor support

As a student with NEC you'll have a personal tutor who will support you while you work through the course. NEC tutors are subject experts who understand distance learning.

The course is comprehensive, so you'll find that you don't need your tutor to be a 'teacher': your tutor is there to mark and comment on your assignment work and to answer any queries you have about the subject to help you get the most from the course.

Your tutor will give you helpful and encouraging feedback, so that you know what you're doing well and where you can make improvements. Above all, your tutor is on your side and will want to see you succeed.

You can also contact NEC's student support team with any questions you have, if they are related to the subject you are studying, and they will liaise with your tutor on your behalf.

Course overview

Specification

There is no specification, but this course will provide a thorough introduction to Latin and a strong foundation from which to build valuable language skills.

Entry requirements

No previous knowledge is required for this course.

Completion time

You should allow for between 120 and 150 hours' study time plus additional time for completing assignments. You will have tutor support for a period of up to 18 months from the date you enrol.

Essential textbooks

This course is entirely self-contained so no additional textbooks are required.

'It has now been over six months since I began my courses with you, and I am extremely impressed by the standard of tutoring and the resources available for students to succeed. Thank you!'

NEC Biology student

'I really like using the site as it is easy to navigate and is well structured. Furthermore, everything is nicely organised and so allows me to remain organised when studying.'

NEC History and English student

Tracey is a tutor for NEC's Psychology, and Sociology courses

She is a qualified teacher and social worker and has completed postgraduate training in Learning Disability Studies. The best thing about being a tutor for NEC, Tracey says, is:

'NEC students. They never fail to inspire and motivate me. Many of our students work in their own homes and have to be disciplined to study like this, so it is always great to have enthusiastic students who work hard to complete their courses.'

However, you may find it helpful to purchase 'Daily Life in Ancient Rome' by J Carcopino, Penguin, and 'The World of Rome' by M Grant, Weidenfeld, for additional reading. These are not included in your course fee.

Assessment

Twelve NEC assignments (plus an introductory assignment). Successful completion of all assignments will result in an NEC Certificate of Completion.

When to enrol?

You can enrol at any time.
